

Can you tell me something about yourself?

Top 3 answers

1. I would characterize myself as an ambitious and enthusiastic young teacher who hopes to bring positivity to each classroom, as well as to the staff-room. I love being around children, and generally children enjoy being around me, and I cannot wait to start teaching here, or at another elementary school with a great leadership in place. In my free time I enjoy dancing and socializing, as well as reading books on human psychology and ecology.
2. I would characterize myself with the following three words: responsible, passionate, and humble. Understanding the responsibility we carry on our shoulders as teachers, especially at elementary and secondary level, I have approached my education responsibly, trying to get ready for all challenges I may face as a teacher. At the same time, however, I try to teach with passion—for the subject, and for the children. I believe students can feel it in the classes, and it helps me to win them over. And at the same time I try to stay humble, always learning from more experienced teachers, but also from my students, and the feedback I get on my lessons.
3. My name is James, I am 52 years old, and have just moved here from Canada, after working mostly manual jobs back home for thirty years. Trying to benefit from my native language, I want to get a job of an English teacher at a private language school, starting a new life here, rediscovering passion for living and working—a passion I've struggled to find back in Canada. Other than that I am just a normal guy who enjoys meeting new people, reading, and learning new stuff. Since I read a lot I find myself comfortable conversing about all sorts of topics, which I believe will be extremely helpful in conversational lessons with your students. Would you like me to elaborate on my education, or any of the jobs I had in Canada?
